01 About CIVICS

Over the last decade, rapid technological advancements in Computed Tomography (CT) has made it possible for us to get contrast-enhanced images of coronary arteries in high resolution with just small amounts of radiation. Because so many experts find the use of CT to be highly appropriate and efficient, the growing number of clinical applications for cardiovascular CT is increasing worldwide. In light of these trends, and the ever changing medical world, CIVICS was founded to meet the needs of those medical specialists who focus on the study of cardiovascular imaging in CT. CIVICS endeavors to enhance the effectiveness and clinical usefulness of the cardiovascular imaging of CT. We try to accomplish this by promoting academic activities throughout Asia, for experts from a number of disciplines including cardiology, radiology and other specialists who study in this field.
